What does 'tax resident' mean?

You are a tax resident of a country if you are liable to pay tax to the country due to residence in the country or similar. In other words, countries where you are liable to pay tax on your entire income from both Denmark and abroad; also known as full tax liability.

What is a tax identification number?

A tax identification number is the number used to identify individual taxpayers. The number is on your tax return, for example. In Denmark, your CPR-number is also your tax identification number. Other countries have specific tax identification numbers that are solely used for tax purposes. The taxpayer identification number is often referred to by its abbreviation TIN. You can usually find your tax identification number on your payslip, annual tax return or your foreign ID card. Contact the local tax authority if you do not know your tax identification number.
